Nedlands is my home and workplace. I've always loved its tree-lined streets, the parks, a film at Windsor Cinema, Captain Stirling Hotel pub nights from my UWA days, and the people that make up this community. Like many of you, I have been concerned by some of its recent challenges. Which is why I'm putting my hand up to help renew our City.

My community work began at UWA through volunteering. As a Guild Councillor I advocated for students; on the Senate I helped guide decisions during the Renewal project. As College President I helped build a positive, safe culture as the college grew from 250 residents at Currie Hall to 750 at University Hall. Later, as Bloom President and a UWA Venture mentor, I supported young innovators.

Professionally, my accounting degree equips me for sound financial management. I've worked on digital transformations for the City of Stirling, Legal Aid and the Department of Health, and I'm now a public policy Research Scholar producing deep analysis for productivity submissions.

You deserve: (1) good governance and value for rates - transparent budgets, on-time audits, strong controls and a united Council that supports staff and delivers; (2) safety - fix hazardous paths/playgrounds and improve lighting; and (3) protecting local character - resist overdevelopment, protect tree canopy/green space, and address Melvista parking spillover and congestion.

This community deserves dignity, safety, and value back. Follow along, tell me your priorities. Let's renew Nedlands together.
