Hospice consultation day – Sunday 11 July 2021

A community session conducted last Sunday at the WA Bridge Club provided an opportunity for local residents seeking more information on the children's hospice to have their questions answered by key stakeholders.

City of Nedlands Mayor, Fiona Argyle, who was not party to the early negotiations on this project, took the opportunity to speak with many of the attendees including local residents and other interested groups such as Friends of Allen Park.

Councillors McManus, Coghlan, Senathirajah, Tyson and Smyth attended the session along with approximately 50 City of Nedlands residents, many of whom live close to Allen Park.

“There was a lot of interest shown by local residents and councillors for the full two hours of the session and it was a useful time for me to hear directly from those who live close to the proposed development,” Ms Argyle said.
