

Bikers turn up to celebrate Bike Week 2015

Two hundred and sixty people and their bikes turned up to enjoy a free cooked breakfast on the terrace of the University of Western Australia University Club to celebrate Bike week 2015 last week.

The City of Nedlands and UWA teamed up to present the UWA Nedlands Bike Breakfast, with support from WestCycle.

The event aims to encourage people of all ages to take up cycling as a healthy and inexpensive mode of transport, and celebrates those who already cycle. Participants also had access to the Dismantle Bike Doctors, who were on site to attend to faulty bikes and flat tyres.

About Bike Week

Bike Week is the Department of Transport's annual celebration and promotion of riding a bicycle for transport. It's a celebration of all that's great about cycling in Western Australia. For more information, see bikeweek.com.au.
