City of Nedlands calling for clever ideas in Mt Claremont

Like toys, playground equipment gets old and out of date, so the City is asking the community for suggestions on a playground upgrade for New Court Gardens.

As a central point for residents of New Court Green, the Gardens include a playground for children and a gazebo for parents, grandparents and other residents to enjoy.

City of Nedlands CEO, Mark Goodlet says suburban hubs play a major role in bringing people together and promoting healthy outdoor activities.

“The playground has been popular for many years and we want to ensure this continues.

“Trends change and new types of equipment become popular, so we’d like to hear from nearby residents, or anyone with an interest in this location, who have suggestions for the playground upgrade,” Mr Goodlet said.

“There are, of course, some budgetary limits, but we will consider all suggestions.”
